

Thorney Island Primary School pupils renovate WWII Plaque

Year 6 Eagle class pupils searched the Island for evidence of World War

II artefacts, They reported that they had located a plaque that was in a neglected state. When this came to the attention of our headteacher, Mr Clegg, he asked the children to write a letter about its poorly kept state to Station Commander, Lt Col Ian Coulson, describing the overgrowth that covered the plaque and its muddied state.

The Army agreed to clear away the undergrowth. Three Year 6's - Anggolina, Ethan, and Liam went to the plaque and gave it a thorough clean. They re-painted the plaque in a stunning white leaving it looking as good as new.

The Station Commander has visited the repainted plaque and was delighted with the result and wished to thank Eagle Class for bringing it to his attention.

Published in the EMS (The Quarterly newspaper of the Emsworth Residents Association) August 2018